

HOT AND COLD

with you I am like
pre-made jell-o:

cold water must be
mixed with the hot

before it can dissolve together, become bearable to the touch—

but I am also trying too hard

To resist
refrigeration,
afraid of stiffening from the edges,

Jelling over,

settling too quickly.